RENEWING ACQUAINTANCES with a former student is Dr. Max Rafferty, candidate for state superintendent of schools. With Rafferty at recent Torrance meeting is Mrs. Jonell L. Platt, local teacher who once was a student in a class taught by Rafferty in Trona.

'Education in Depth' Program Outlined by Schools Candid

Dr. Max Rafferty, one of two candidates for the post of state superintendent of public education, appeared at a meeting in Torrance last week and outlined his program for "Education in Depth."

Dr. Rafferty said he is opposed to the currently popular "Life Adjustment Philosophy in Education" and would like to stress the importance of subject matter. "Education in Depth" would lend emphasis to the subject being studied, whether that subject was English, history, geography, woodshop, physical education or any of the other subjects.

Dr. Rafferty said only by stressing subject matter is the teacher able to excite the students' interest and challenge them to do their best. In addition, "Education in Depth" is interesting to the teacher as well and being a challenge for the teacher to bring his full ability and guidance to play.

Speaking about the method of text book selection throughout California school system, the educator stressed the fact that a greater selection should be available to local school boards.

Elementary school districts should have the same right of choice of their text books as do the high school districts at the present time, he said. Dr. Rafferty's stand on text books is in direct opposition to his opponent's stand, who would continue the same method of state selection of text books in elementary schools that is now in practice.

Dr. Rafferty also took a strong stand on the question of local control in the state unification program, stressing the fact that unification of school districts should always be subject to the approval of the local school boards.
